

Report Writing Services

Your system is only as good as the reports you generate. Consilium Technologies prides itself on the flexibility of their report writing tools, allowing you, the end user the ability to glean only the information you require in a user friendly, accessible form

As part of your implementation you will have been fully trained on report writing and should have all the skills required to develop a full set of reports for all users.

However no-one understands more than Consilium the pressures on key members of the implementation team at go-live. Often, the immediate requirements of the input staff takes priority over any long term need to produce comprehensive and understandable reports. This can result in loss of end user confidence in the whole system.

Consilium's professional Project Services team can provide on-going support to aid a smooth implementation. Working closely with you the customer our services consultants will specify, design and reconcile specific end user reports freeing the implementation team to focus on delivering a successful project. This saves valuable time and ensures that reports are waiting for end users when they are required. Our report writing services are produced and delivered by experienced staff, all of whom have a detailed knowledge of your business gained over many years.

Consilium provide report writing services at any time although demand for this facility is usually highest soon after go-live, when the in-house report writers may not be familiar enough with the system to respond to any requests for specific formats. This is where we can help.

The service itself provides:

1. Agreement on the reports required
2. Professional specification, including a mock up of the output format
3. Report writing
4. A written end-user guide that includes running the reports and reconciliation back to the underlying data.

Our fixed price quote is based on the complexity of the requirements and may range from a request to write, install and document a straightforward user defined report to a more complex design, involving other report writing tools and reconciliation procedures.

For further information on our Report Writing or any other services you may require please contact:

Raymond Collins (Operational Services Sales)
Consilium Technologies
Phone: 028 9448 0000
EM: Raymond.Collins@ctechs.co.uk